a taste of the sublime is a collection of sonnets which can stand alone as powerful and inspiring poems but together tell a story of love loss and self discovery the book follows two main characters initially referred to only as the driver and the passenger it begins in the present in the middle of an apparently trivial affair between the two but then flashes back to what events in their lives led the two to come together in their seemingly trivial affair they discover that a true loving attraction can never be anything but spectacular the poems though in sonnet form are easily accessible to the reader and allow for a broad range of interpretation and meaning a taste of the sublime will do exactly what the title suggests leading the reader away from the monotonies of life and providing them with an encounter that is truly sublime beckett's novel molloy and the question how this work evokes a particular kind of feeling associated with its exhibition of meaninglessness namely the feeling of the sublime is the point of departure for this study kant's theory of the sublime is interpreted within the framework of his aesthetic and moral theories suggesting a way to understand the claim to universal validity for aesthetic judgements kant claims that the judgement of the sublime serves morality but he fails to provide this link so a theory of how this aesthetic judgement can contribute to the cultivation of moral character is developed it is argued that kant held that art including narrative art like the novel can be sublime kant's theory of the sublime is shown to be relevant for modern works of art and the application of this kantian framework throws new light on the discussion of the moral aspects of beckett's literary work according to this account molloy is a sublime work of art and despite its amoral content can serve the reader's moral cultivation
